Lagniappe Medical Clinics Moves to Full Price Transparency

COLUMBIA, South Carolina – Lagniappe Medical Clinics, in alignment with President Trump’s Executive order signed on October 3rd, announced today that it is providing full cost transparency regarding its medical and ancillary services by creating easy-to-read cost comparison charts for consumers.

Chairman of the Board and Founder, Jeff Lehrich, has been a vocal supporter of understandable price transparency for consumers in the healthcare marketplace. “Our cash pay pricing is offered to patients without insurance, patients with insurance but with high deductibles and our community via our Direct Primary Care program. Our pricing comparison for various testing and imaging services is easy to comprehend versus the opaque and complicated listings of hospital systems. Even with a cash pay discount that may be offered from hospitals, our prices are 66%-1000% less expensive than the net price paid for services at many hospitals. We think consumers need to know how expensive some of these hospital charges are.”

Lehrich also stated that exorbitant hospital charges can hurt consumers in other ways:

- If a claim is denied by the insurance company, the consumer owes the full amount charged by the hospital.
- If a consumer’s hospital is out-of-network, the consumer pays more out of pocket for the service.
- Most consumers don’t know to ask hospitals for the “cash price”, meaning hospitals and insurers artificially inflate costs for insured consumers.
