Test Result Notification Policy

The physician in this office will order laboratory testing and imaging studies that he feels is necessary to evaluate your condition. If you have a skin lesion that is concerning, he may also take biopsies at that time. He will review the results once they become available. Test results may take anywhere from several days to several weeks to come back to the office depending on the test ordered. No test results will be released without the physician reviewing the results.

You'll be notified of your test results either by mail or during your next scheduled visit after the physician has reviewed your test results. Usually, the turnaround time is about 2-3 weeks for test results to be mailed to you. Depending on the specific situation, the physician or the medical staff may contact you directly by telephone regarding your tests.

Due to the government's HIPPA privacy laws, our office will not give test results or information over the telephone. If it has been three weeks since your test was done and you have not heard from our office AND you do not have a forthcoming appointment, please call us to check the status of your test results. We appreciate your cooperation with this test result notification policy. Our goal is to promptly notify you of your test results.
