

BRAIN TRAINING

A patient diagnosed with cancer could experience deterioration in attention, memory and visual skills which are directly associated with cancer treatment induced neurological problems. Brain training can help mitigate the effects on the brain post traditional treatment.

PEPTIDES

Immune Boosters

Certain therapies for cancer can suppress or weaken the immune system by reducing the number of white blood cells and other immune system cells in the body. It can help the body's natural defence mechanism fight infections and illnesses that occur often during treatment.

Anti-Inflammation

help mitigate the inflammation caused by various infections as these infections trigger the inflammation.

HOW DOES THIS PROGRAM WORK?

Our Cancer Support program can be planned around your schedule, so you can come in weekly or bi-weekly, as recommended by your physician.

Providing consistent support through periodic infusions help you keep your recovery on the right track.
