Doctors say that Katie Holmes could be pregnant with her second child

Strolling out of her New York apartment, a normally svelte Katie Holmes appeared to have a noticeable bulge in her belly. "She looked pregnant," Sogol Lunt, a tourist visiting from England who spotted Katie on December 17, tells In Touch. "She definitely had a baby bump."

A pregnancy wouldn't surprise many of Katie's friends, especially now that her Broadway play, All My Sons, is coming to a close on January 11 and she and her husband, Tom Cruise, are moving back to Beverly Hills. "A second baby has always been their plan," says an insider. "Tom wanted Katie to get pregnant earlier, but she wanted to wait until the show was finished."

The couple has been playing coy about whether they'll give their daughter Suri, 2, a sibling. On December 15, Tom deflected Today show host Matt Lauer's inquiry by joking, "I think that's the question for the women."

Telltale signs of a baby

While Katie's rep denies she's pregnant, there are noticeable signs that she may have a bun in the oven. "I would estimate that she is about 12 weeks along," Dr. Kevin Jovanovic, an assistant professor of obstetrics/gynecology at Lenox Hill Hospital, who does not treat Katie, tells In Touch.

According to witnesses who have seen All My Sons, Katie uses a huge purse in a couple of scenes to shield her belly. "It really looked like she was pregnant," audience

Suri's brought so much happiness into their lives

Katie and Tom have admitted that their house is very festive now that Suri is a part of their growing family. "We have so many kids in our house; there's always this wonderful chatter and the great noise of kids," Katie told Entertainment Tonight. Tom also can't believe how exciting his life has become. "It's more adventure than I ever anticipated," he says.

IS SHE HIDING IT?

In All My Sons, Katie's costume is a loose, flowing black dress, which makes it easier to conceal her tummy.

TOM'S SHOWING KATIE HE'S NEW AND IMPROVED

LOOKING OLDER AND HEAVIER

In May, Tom attended the Metropolitan Museum of Art's Costume Institute Gala, Superheroes: Fashion and Fantasy event in New York and not only looked his age, but seemed a little paunchy.

LOOKING YOUNG AGAIN

On December 15, Tom went to a screening of his movie Valkyrie and looked like he just stepped off the set of Top Gun! "He wants to be the Tom Cruise everyone remembers," a source says.
