April 11, 2018

To my dear patients,

I am writing this letter to share with you some news that affects us both. It is with great difficulty that I have come to the decision to resign from private practice. The growing needs of my family have become such that they need to take precedence over my professional responsibilities. This has been a very difficult decision and is a bittersweet one, as I will dearly miss caring for all of my patients but also welcome the necessary change for my family. It has been a privilege and an honor to care for my patients, and you have truly enriched my life.

While I will not be in private practice any longer as of June 1, 2018, I will be practicing as an obstetrician/gynecologist in a different role. I will be at Medical City Dallas, caring for hospitalized patients. My associates at North Texas Obstetrics and Gynecology Associates- Drs. Laura Bradley, Julie Vu, Nora Hsu, Ivan Rovner, Ralph Joseph and Dennis Eisenberg- will happily assume your care. They are excellent doctors and I am very comfortable entrusting you to them. If you would like to receive care elsewhere, the office can forward your medical records to your new physician upon receipt of a written request.

I have greatly valued my time caring for you and wish all of you the utmost health and happiness. Thank you for allowing me to be a part of your life!

Sincerely,

Laura Kilmer, MD
